

Walkway now a toilet for dogs

I REFER to last Thursday's letter by Mr J.A. Bragassam, 'Watch it, or Singapore will be a poo-city Paris'. I could not agree more with his concern and would like to share my frustration with readers.

Dogs' mess is a common sight around the estate where I live. In fact, on the short trip to the bus stop every morning, I never fail to spot at least five fresh poos.

Some dog owners here have no sense of civic consciousness to pick up after their dogs. The small walkway with grass at the side has become a toilet for the dogs, during their morning walks and evening strolls. The little park is a pretty sight but has been spoilt by the mess, not to mention the smell.

I love animals and the sight of people caring for animals. However, I urge all dog owners to be responsible and gracious. Keep our housing estates clean for everyone.

Roselinah Rasiman (Madam)