

Online Only - Open air "toilet" at Sago Lane

Letter from Tan Chee Khai

09:50 PM Oct 09, 2009

Last weekend was the Mid-autumn festival, so my family and I made a trip to Chinatown to get a feel of the festive mood. When I was walking pass the empty space between Block 4 and 5, Sago Lane, towards the Buddha Relic temple, a stench filled the air. Then I saw a senior citizen urinating at the area. When he saw me after finishing his "business", there was not a single tinge of awkwardness from him as he walked passed me.

A shop assistant from the nearby shops told me the area has been a long standing al fresco "toilet".

The town council has been informed but nothing much has been done about it.