

Whatever happened to those in-lift urine detectors?

Letter from Edward Tan

I HAVE written to the authorities before about the persistent urinating in the lifts at Blk 93, Paya Lebar Way.

But to date, nothing has been done to deter the culprits from dirtying the lifts.

Whatever happened to the installing of close circuit cameras and anti-urinating devices? Are their costs so exorbitant that they are no longer being used?

We are constantly reminded with the slogan "Singapore's OK" in the campaign to keep our environment clean and hygienic.

But it seems nothing is being done to implement this, despite active citizenry on the part of residents in alerting those in charge to the pressing issue.
