

Eco-friendly showers at MacRitchie but water wasted in toilet cubicles

---

THE renovation of MacRitchie Reservoir was completed about two months ago. There is now a visitor centre with proper toilet facilities. It was also highlighted that the shower facilities were eco-friendly, requiring users to pull a ring to activate the water.

I wish to bring to the attention of the authorities that while the manual eco-friendly shower facilities work well, the same cannot be said of the shower points in the cubicles of the male toilet.

The shower head is poorly designed. In the cubicle, water from the shower points is directed outwards at steep angles to the sides of the cubicle and the door. The water jet is widely dispersed, and not directed where the user stands when using the facility, but wasted on the walls of the cubicle.

I hope the authorities will look into improving this facility.

Francis Goh