Residents living near the Kovan Hougang Market and Food Centre no longer have to go far for spanking new public toilets.

The completed renovation of the 20-year old food centre and market came with five-star toilet facilities.

Designers of the new toilets say placements of wash basins, hand dryers and stalls encourage positive behaviour of those who use the toilets.

They hope it will mean less maintenance and cleaning as well.

The open air concept also has better ventilation, making the trip to the restrooms more pleasant.

Hawkers have already noticed a big change in their business because of the new toilets.

Some have reported that sales are up by 20 to 30 percent.
